Two Rings: "Between Orient and Occident"

Orient - Occident, Christianity – Islam, Day – Night, Brightness – Darkness.

Human intelligence loves to separate universal coherences, though in reality all things belong together and have to be seen as a whole.

We think this holds good for all religions and believers: they all believe in a universal kind of god, but sometimes have problems recognizing this. Our two rings are a symbol of the tolerance of and the respect for other ways of believing. Our wish is for the world religions and their people to reach a peaceful coexistence.
