Hinduism and Hindu mythology have always been a source of inspiration in art and literature.

The Gods are an integral part of Hindu culture and are depicted in art, literature and icons.

Two principal Gods from Hinduism are depicted here:

Krishna : the divine lover, philosopher, politician etc. is shown with his companion, on one side offering her a jasmine garland to win her sympathy and on the other side sitting with her by the lake.

The necklace "holy family" shows us another important God: Shiva, the divine dancer, with his consort Kali.

Shiva is the destroyer and transformer, with them are their sons Ganesha, (his elephant head makes him easy to identify) and Kumara (the God of war and the patron deity of the Tamil)
